

Killing the elk that are considered a nuisance would be a temporary "fix". Killing them would be the way way out. Elk have lived in Oregon since before Lewis and Clark visited.

Please do the hard work of coming up with a more permanent solution. Preferably one that doesn't include killing innocent animals.

Create safe ways for them to get out of residential areas and to forested areas. Create corridors, build bridges, ramps, look at what Colorado and Montana are doing to help wildlife move safely "across" highways.

Thank you for your consideration.
