

To whom it may concern:

I am a parent of 5 with 4 school aged. We have done online virtual learning this year and want to continue with that as we have conflict of interest with our current school district and love the freedom virtual school gives us. I am able to juggle life better with them all home. We have been denied virtual school this coming school year due to the 3% already being reached. We would love to have the opportunity to continue doing virtual school of our choice not have to either do what our school offers or put them back in traditional school. I think that parents should be able to have the choice to put their children in whatever school they want as long as that school has room and not be stuck with their local school district. My children have excelled in school this year when they were struggling last year. Please reconsider having a cap on enrollment for virtual school and give the choice back to the parents.

Sincerely, Melissa Anderson
