A Death Of Ethics: Is Hunting Destroying Itself?
FROM KILLING BABOON FAMILIES TO STAGING PREDATOR-KILLING CONTESTS, HUNTERS STAND ACCUSED OF VIOLATING THE NORTH AMERICAN MODEL OF WILDLIFE CONSERVATION. NOW THEY'RE BEING CALLED OUT BY THEIR OWN
by Todd Wilkinson

Posewitz and others identify several legally permitted hunting activities in America that, in their determination, grossly fail to pass the rule of fair chase and ethical standards laid out in the North American Model. Those contradictions are giving hunting a bad name, they say, resulting in it losing its appeal and credibility among the overwhelming majority of Americans who do not hunt.
