

I am a Junior in the Radiologic Science Program. I joined this program because I wanted work hard and do work that was fulfilling while playing my part in helping patients. The deciding factor for me was the sense of community the faculty established. As difficult as the program is, I do not regret my decision to apply for it. Since the very beginning of my academic journey at OIT, the professors have been nothing but welcoming. I have always been able to stop by unannounced and receive help. I never felt like I was a bother to them no matter the amount of times I've stopped by their offices. They've always been pushing me to try harder and apply myself further. It is clear that it is a joy for the faculty to teach. I have never been to a community college or university with extremely passionate professors. I cannot commend my professors enough. My only regret about my decision is the fact that I chose a school with an administration that does not care about its faculty. It is a shame that tensions have reached this point. After reading through the facts, it is clear that OIT is a polytechnic school because of the FACULTY.

Thank You,
