

To whom it may concern:

I am a current employee at Mt. Hood Community College. You see, I had such a positive and transformational experience during my time at a community college that I choose to work at the place that changed my life. Prior to MHCC, I was a high school drop out. No one believed in me. Heck, I DIDN'T believe in me. Then, for the first time in an academic setting, I could see myself doing well, thriving, fitting in. And I'm not alone - students across Oregon feel the same way.

From high school drop out to earning my mater's degree, I am a proud community college graduate! Please consider additional funding for community colleges!

Respectfully,

Katelyn Goslin
