

I have been a recipient of reiki and many other healing modalities of which I feel may be on this bill.

I am currently suffering from tumors in my uterus and long term neuropathic conditions in my arms and hands and was on pain management consistent of and not limited to 120 Vicodin monthly. Of which I was able to quit using due to alternative healing modalities.

I am a Christian woman. I was sceptical of said types of healing myself. Healing is not evil! The only evil here is those people who would be responsible for me not being able to access it.

It seems to me this is more of an underhanded yet legal witch burning of sorts.

Be sure and check your families, all the branches! Who might you know in your own inner circles that might be benefiting from alternative forms of healing? Who in your own family might suffer because you take these types of healing away because of your own prejudice?

I urge you to consider diplomacy over personal judgement. I know who judgement belongs to. In the end it will be God alone. Consider making this a current ideal. Because in the end, you too will face judgement.
