

Dear Decision Makers:

I am a 76-year-old Vancouver resident who has been attending and exhibiting at events that offer alternative healing and other therapies for nearly 30 years. I have yet to meet anyone who has said they felt damaged from guidance or healing provided at such events. Please don't make any rules that require people to be licensed to provide these types of services. There are thousands of other things you could devote your energies to that would better serve your voters.

Blessings,

John M. Thompson
