I am opposed to same day registration. If people can't be responsible enough to register to vote by a deadline far enough ahead to allow processing of their registration do they care enough to vote?

We should have informed voters whatever their politics. People who take at least a little time to inform themselves about issues & candidates.

Seems like same day registration would be more work & more expensive at a time when budgets are hurting. How much more would that cost?

W mail ballots how would that even work? It certainly would disrupt the current orderly process.

Also would make it harder to verify qualified citizen & not duplicate.
