

This country has become the most successful country in the history of the modern world, and the most powerful force for good.

There are many factors that play into this success, however the armed citizen cannot be discounted as a force for good that has been a major factor in this success. It is self evident that without armed citizens the revolutionary war would never have been possible, and therefore this country would not exist. After the success of the revolution, the founders of our country embedded within our constitution something they hoped would help ensure the continued success of this country against all forms of corruption, both foreign and domestic; that is the right to keep and bear arms given to us in the second amendment.

This bill would seek to strip the natural right of self defense inherit in all living beings. This bill would further empower criminals who are not concerned with the law letting them know there are fewer and fewer people to stand in their way and prevent them from committing crimes.
