

Decreases general parking spaces, exclusive to only certain sectors of society that need to obtain these services. Construction decisions for vehicle charging stations should be independent of government regulation, i.e. private property.