

My city is small and I am the one that ends up writing grants or doing other things that no one else in the community can provide. I work full time in hospice while serving my first term as Mayor. With this type of resource, there are several initiatives we can address, such as a public pool purchase and gun club maintenance, that our community wants to keep as their legacy. I am in support of this extra support.