

If there is a need to restrict persons with a ccl from entering a building or location, it should be up to the state not by individual groups. To give this authority to such groups would cause confusion and make felons out of otherwise law abiding citizens. The only people that follow the law are the good guys the bad guys as in the past will not. The bad person does not get a ccl. This bill will not stop a person that is bent shooting up the place, but it will effect a privet citizen with a ccl from defending themselves and others. If this measure would become law it would not make a place safer but would make it more dangerous. I don't need go into how vague this measure is but I will say that it would not pass a legal challenge.
