

I feel like it should be up to the ruling judge to determine sentencing. It makes no sense that every cars should be treated the same and have mandatory sentences attached. Each case presents different individuals, with different circumstances, different backgrounds, and different context. It is in the public's best interest to be treated fairly and justly but with it the way it is creates a very unjust system.