

Forest land owners currently pay significant taxes on their land and the income they receive from timber harvests. There is no reason to place an extra tax burden on this specific group of people. If taxes must be raised, create a tax for everyone and every entity that benefits from the activities supported by the proposed new taxes. .