

Dear Representatives,

I am a 70 year old retired teacher living in Eugene, Oregon. I've been searching for an alternative death remains plans for some time. I was so thrilled to find out about Recompose, giving people a choice on how someone's family can deal with a body after death in a human and ecological manner. I am signing up for this service in Washington, but will need my remains to be transported to Washington if I pass here in Oregon. Many of my friends are excited about this new service and awaiting its availability in Oregon. I think this is a valuable service especially for those who want to reduce their carbon footprint even after death. Thank you for your thoughts and consideration.
