

I am a motorcyclist living in Portland. I have lived in both California, where lane splitting is legal under certain circumstances, and in New York City, where lane splitting, though not legal, is socially accepted and performed regularly. In both cases it was clear that the ability to lane split was beneficial to ALL vehicles on the road as it decreases congestion for everyone.