BACKGROUND:

The Elliott State Forest is a 91,000 acre forest located in Coos and Douglas Counties in the central Oregon Coast Range. It was established in 1930 as Oregon's first state forest and is overseen by the State Land Board and managed by the Department of State Lands (DSL) as a Common School Fund land asset.

In 2017, the State Land Board voted, after contemplating the sale of the Elliott State Forest, to keep the Elliott State Forest in public ownership. The State Land Board directed DSL to move forward with work to achieve the Board's vision for the Elliott, which includes: 1) keeping the forest publicly owned with public access; 2) decoupling the forest from the Common School Fund, compensating the school fund for the forest and releasing the forest from its obligation to generate revenue for schools; 3) continuing habitat conservation planning to protect species and allow for harvest; and 4) providing for multiple forest benefits, including recreation, education, and working forest research. In December 2018, the State Land Board directed DSL and Oregon State University to begin exploring the Elliott State Research Forest concept. DSL convened the Elliott State Research Forest Advisory Committee, and OSU established an exploratory committee within its College of Forestry to explore transforming the Elliott State Forest into a publicly owned state research forest. The Elliott State Research Forest Proposal was presented to the State Land Board in December 2020 and the State Land Board affirmed the Elliott State Forest's future as a research forest and directed continued collaboration and engagement to finalize remaining details.

Senate Bill 1546 A establishes the Elliott State Research Forest consisting of lands formerly constituting the Elliott State Forest and establishes mission and management policies for the Elliott State Research Forest.
