Measure: SB1521

Parents are already behind the power curve for dealing with issues in the schools where OUR children are taught. I oppose the proposed changes. These changes are clearly aimed at consolidating the power of those already in power. It is disheartening that while our elected officials speak in the language of empowering those they are elected to serve, the actions show the opposite. If a superintendent has violated the trust of a community to the point where enough parents are on board with getting them out, the state should support the action of the community.
