Measure: HB4106

Surgical technologists are specially trained in school for maintaining a sterile field and knowing what to do to keep the patient safe during surgery. If we pass this it could be a detriment to patient safety and cause harm. Thinking back, if I was on the job trained there would be no way I would be as good of a tech as I am today with all of the knowledge and skills required. Passing this bill would cost the patient's health and safety, cause a distrust in the medical community from a patient standpoint, and devalue the current jobs of surgical technologists.
