I think it's good for more students to have the choice to enroll in online school because some children are simply unable to handle public school. There are some students like myself who cannot thrive or properly learn in public school due to the constant distractions and possible toxic classmates. It would also give children who are victims of bullying a chance to have a safer and less toxic environment. It could help those who are mentally disabled to have a better learning experience, with less chance for other students or possibly teachers to be biased and hateful towards them. Overall I believe giving more people a chance to enroll in online school would help more kids want to learn and improve grade point averages. As more students could have access to better resources online that could improve their understanding or the topics they're learning.
