BACKGROUND:

Abandoned vessels are left without authorization on public or private land, or in State or other waters. Derelict vessels are often sinking, actively polluting or obstructing a waterway, endangering life or property, or are in a dilapidated condition and in danger of becoming a significant hazard. Abandoned or derelict vessels (ADV) can cause negative impacts on water quality, damage floats and docks, and can impact safe navigation for other water users. According to statute, an enforcement agency that has responsibility for land or water has the authority to seize these vessels with or without notice depending on the hazards involved.

In a 2022 memo to the then- Governor Kate Brown, the Director of the Oregon Department of State Lands (DSL) noted there were at least 19 known ADV commercial vessels of concern statewide and 175 recreational ADVs in the Portland metro area that were of concern, but no statewide recreational ADV information was currently available.

House Bill 2914 establishes a Task Force on Abandoned and Derelict Vessels and includes legislative, law enforcement, marine, fishing and environmental member representation. The task force will study and make recommendations on laws governing the seizing and disposing of abandoned and derelict vessels in Oregon. The measure also adds language to existing statute that the State Marine Board and DSL will jointly identify locations of ADV's and prioritize seizure and disposal of these vessels in the order of the hazard the vessels present. It also requires DSL to develop and regularly update a web-based and publicly interfacing mapping tool for receiving and mapping ADV's locations.
