BACKGROUND:

Recreational vehicles (RVs) are defined as vehicles with or without motive power that are designed for use as temporary living quarters and are included in the definition of manufactured dwellings. Under current Oregon residential and landlord tenant law (90.100), RV occupancy falls within the category of vacation occupancy, defined as an occupancy that is less than 45 days in a unit that is not the occupant's principal residence.

Also under current Oregon law (197.492), a “recreational vehicle park” covers locations where two or more RVs are within 500 feet of one another on a lot, tract, or parcel under common ownership, and for which the primary purpose is renting space and related facilities for a charge or fee, or provisioning space for free in connection with securing a person’s patronage. Not included in the definition are areas designated for picnicking or overnight camping, or manufactured dwelling or mobile home parks.

House Bill 2634 A clarifies that RV tenancies are not subject to Landlord and Tenant Act provisions governing manufactured dwelling facilities. It expands the definition of “vacation occupancy” to include occupancies of up to 90 days at an RV park, provided the space is used for vacation purposes, is not the occupant's primary residence, the RV must be removed from the park at the end of the occupancy period before a new occupancy may begin, and the occupant signs a written agreement acknowledging it is a vacation occupancy. The measure distinguishes RVs from manufactured dwellings, and it describes landlord or RV park owner rights related to notice and disposal of abandoned RVs.
