BACKGROUND:

In 2021, a private company hosted a for-profit display of the dissection of a human body in downtown Portland. The body was donated by a World War II veteran, believing he was donating his body to science for medical research. After the event, Multnomah County adopted a ban prohibiting private companies from conducting this kind of for-profit event. Jurisdictions in Washington, California, and Hawaii have passed similar legislation.

House Bill 2519 A prohibits a person from accepting payment or other consideration in exchange for displaying human remains to the public, with specified exemptions for legitimate ceremonial and educational purposes. The measure creates a civil action that may be filed against any person who accepts payment or consideration for displaying human remains to the public, and provides that injunctive relief, damages, or other appropriate relief may be granted.
