BACKGROUND:

Oregon law provides a process for validating certain divisions and sale of land without adhering to the strict formalities required by law. A county or city may validate the unit of land that was created by a sale if the land was not fully established but could have complied with the applicable criteria for creation of a lawful unit when it was sold, or if a city or county approves a construction or building permit on the unit of land after the sale.

House Bill 3362 A would allow a city or county to approve an application to validate a unit of land that had been approved for creation or recognition that was later revoked after the sale to an innocent purchaser.
