I think ranked choice voting would help democratize our elections by making it easier for voters to select the candidates they truly support, & rank candidates based on how qualified they are to be in a position. This gives candidates who are acceptable to more voters a better chance to win over extremist candidates who may attract certain voters but are an anathema to many others. It also reduces the disadvantage for candidates who are not members of the 2 major parties, & at last may give voice to a wider range of views.
