

Submitter: Scott Dalrymple

On Behalf Of:

Committee: Senate Committee On Education

Measure: SB767

Parents need to have choices for their children to attend school that fit their needs. Charter schools have an uphill battle finding accommodations to their community and be able to afford purchasing land in the given school districts. There needs to be flexibility in extend the boundaries. Parents already are trying hard to drive longer distances to make sure their children make it to a school that strives to work for parents and raise the bar for education.