Measure: HJR5

Hunting and gathering is part of everyones heritage. It is imperative to learn, teach, and experience what the environment provides for our families. Having access to such means should be a right to any citizen within the United States of America. More specifically for this issue, Oregonians should have the constitutional right to conduct hunting, fishing, gathering, and experience nature on public lands. Furthermore, this constitutional right should extend to a persons privately owned land and public land as long as current laws and regulations are met. Any attempt to control the ability of one's constitutional right should be dismissed including, but not limited to this right we are visiting about today. We continue to manage nature in a sustainable way and with this constitutional right people will remain engaged to continuing this effort. I support hunting, fishing, and gathering to all.
