Hello Judiciary

Nothing tugs at the heart strings like pitting a child against a broken family unit.

This is a multi complicated choice because of all kinds of factors in a parental break up or other issues.

I knew a good grandfather who fought for custody of a boy (both parents were truly dysfunctional drug users).

many times a family member with good relations with a child gives them much better options than foster care,

(I know, I have seen the process over many years).

So yes I can support this legislation.
