Measure: HB2772

As written, I strongly oppose this bill. The relating to clause is too vague and leaves this bill vulnerable to a gut and stuff that could have anyone qualify as a domestic terrorist. We have seen the label of domestic terrorist be thrown around carelessly the past two years. In fact, the National School Board's Association had to issue an apology to parents after writing a letter to the President and attempting to get the DOJ involved in punishing parents who voiced concerns at their local school boards.

These words should never be taken lightly and should be reserved for individuals whose actions result in extraordinary levels of death, injury, or property damage.

The government works for the people and should always invite their comment and encourage them to engage in the legislative process. People that cause harm to other people and or property should be incarcerated. Please don't allow this bill to confuse the two, we are not the same.
