

I am a cisgender straight woman, but even I know conversion therapy is not something that needs to be in existence. This practice harms children and adults mentally and physically, just because they are different from what a good amount of people consider "normal" by society and religious standards. If we continue to let conversion therapy be a thing, many people will harm themselves, or worse.