I support this bill. No one should undergo therapy that is focused on converting someone's belief about themselves with regards to their sexual orientation or gender. I think the bill does a good job at explaining that exploratory therapy that is neutral towards a client's sexual orientation or gender is positive and acceptable, as it should be. I take "neutral" to mean here that the therapy is affirming to the individual, but there's no pushing to convert someone towards a specific gender identity or sexual orientation.
