The Covanta-Marion facility is 37 years old - close to the end of it's lifespan. WHY are we even considering allowing it to request the addition of even more dangerous and toxic medical waste????? I don't know what happens when a facility like this reaches it's end, but I shudder to think of what kind of melt down could happen out there. What would happen to the medical waste lingering inside?

The time is now to rethink a new plan for a modern up to date federally overseen facility that will not be a toxic hazard to the people who live in that community!

Thank you
