I recently moved to Portland from the San Francisco Bay Area — where lane-sharing is legal. I've seen and experienced first hand how it could save lives.

As a daily commuter, I've seen my fair share of car accidents and most of the ones I've seen are rear-ended collisions. In a car, that could not be that big of a deal, but on motorcycle, that can quickly be fatal.

Plus, having an air-cooled motorcycle when it's 80°+ puts my motorcycle in jeopardy if I'm slowly creeping along in traffic.
