To Whom: It may concern, I have been River Reeds Personal Support worker for over four years. I started working for River when Sarah Reed worked full time often coming home late. River would get up several times at night which resulted in little or know sleep for Sarah. River had many behavioral problems such as running away from providers, throwing objects, writing on walls, locking providers out of the house, turning water on causing floods in the house, turning burners and oven on and not listening when it was time to leave an activitie. This behavior continued until Sarah decided to stay home to better support her son.

The change in River was amazing gradually he seemed know longer angry, calmer, he would listen and responed in a positive mater. River still gets up several times at night and needs constant supervision he has a much better support system with his mother staying home with him.

In conclusion after witnessing the tremendous growth in his development and behavior I support Sarah Reed to continue to be in the Paid Caregivers program.

Thank-you
