I believe that the Bible is the word of God. "You shall not commit murder" is one of the Ten Commandments. The reason given is because we are made "In the image of God"--we are more than just an animal which can be euthanized at will. Because our society has abandoned its belief in God, we no longer have a moral compass. Right and Wrong have become mercurial, changing with the tide of public opinion, which itself is controlled and manipulated. I understand the wish for a peaceful and painless death for loved ones and ourselves. But I sincerely believe that to violate God's clear commandment meant for our protection will put evil men in charge of our life and death decisions.
