

Submitter: Dave King
On Behalf Of: SB 803
Committee: Senate Committee On Energy and Environment
Measure: SB803

Dear Senate Committee on Energy and Environment, I am a retired construction worker and Mental Health Social Worker (LCSW). I have been paying attention to climate news since the early 90s, and I'm not happy. It has become clear to everyone but the most rigid believers in Trump and the oil industry that the climate is changing in disastrous ways: Unprecedented heat waves, chronic drought and wildfires here in Oregon. Storms in other areas and odd new patterns of the jet streams are waking people up everywhere.

A small but important step that you could take to help the situation would be to pass SB 803 which would mandate a less polluting kind of diesel. Please pass it and work to find other measures that would help the climate.

This bill will hurt no one.

Similarly stopping the trapping of beavers will hurt no one while conserving water and increase biodiversity and slow the spread of fires, while supporting natural carbon capture.

Thank you for your attention.

Yours, Dave King
