

Ranked choice voting is absolutely imperative to fixing the electoral system in this country. By developing and refining our election systems, we can ensure more equitable access to elections, happier voters, and a generally more balanced system. The first step to this is giving more than one duality of choice on voting rolls, and allowing for the diversity of opinions that will always fundamentally exist in America to more aptly display themselves on our ballot. Ranked choice voting is the future.