

I OPPOSE [HB 3152]...

ConocoPhillips loves the "Willow Project in Alaska" which has been given the green light. Environmentalists the world over are weeping, gnashing their teeth and some in the Oregon Legislature were seen pulling their green hair out of their skulls.

"Managed Transition" is now...acceleration to clean energy powered by fossil fuels...my, my, my how times have changed.

[HB 3152] illustrates the ragged disarray now facing the Greenies. Somehow, the Greenies think everyone is going to go electric. All new houses will only be electric, just like California.

"No" natural gas fireplaces, clothes-dryers, water heaters, stovetops and or ovens will be in new homes.

[HB 3152] will save the rest of us from prohibiting natural gas rate increases to pay for "stranded fossil fuel assets," like pipes, valves, left behind, abandoned to rot unceremoniously into nothingness.

With the ConocoPhillips deal, the cavalry has arrived and mugged the Greenies back into reality. Natural gas is not going away anytime soon.

Note: Governor Brown appointed all three Public Utility Commissioners.

Mr. Oregon Concurr and says, "I barbequed some baby-back ribs today on my gas grill."
