I enjoy seeing rodeos.

The animals are not being harmed. It is simply an example of what cowboys and ranch owners must do everyday with livestock. If you look deeper into how the animals are treated or why the animals wear certain items, you will understand exactly how it is helpful to the show and especially to the animal.

There are plenty other things to go against but rodeos are not one of them. They have been around for years. Time to stop destroys old time family time and certainly not blame the animal care takers or show producers. No animals are harmed in any way that isn't done on a ranch or farm.
