Measure: SB1051

Oregon is still seeing a large number of people moving into the state from the south. It is not uncommon to sell 5 of every 12 homes to people from another state. The only way we can support the number of homes needed is by increasing the buildable land; thereby, allowing builders to meet the growing need for housing.

If Oregon would like to encourage expansion in a specific area, it should give businesses incentives for those areas and grow cities with the future in mind.
