The current system of voting is not providing voters with the choice they deserve. They are unable to show support for candidates that may be considered "spoilers" for fear of throwing the election to the worst of two evils. The result is ever more polarized candidates being elected to office. With current technology we now have the means to make democracy more democratic and should do so. I think it would give voters more sense of empowerment and choice. No system of voting is perfect but this is an improvement.
