

Submitter:                      william turner

On Behalf Of:

Committee:                      House Committee On Judiciary

Measure:                         HB2006

If my 18 year old now adult daughter moves to an apartment or other dwelling. Should she not have the right to protect herself? Most likely at that age, young adults are not making an extremely large paycheck. So to live on their own, they reside in lower income and less desirable parts of town. These parts of town have statically higher crime rates. My 18 year old 92lbs daughter has been taught firearm safety and refuses to EVER be a victim.