To whom it may concern,

During the fall fire danger season 2 year's ago we were required to evacuate our equine from an area of Clackamas country. It was a scary time for our equine because it was difficult to find a location to move them to a temporary shelter. Clackamas county fairgrounds were considered, but the facilities were lacking of supervision for temporary animal care. At the time it was on the evening late at night so finding a suitable shelter was difficult.

I support the upgrade of the Clackamas county fairgrounds for a temporary animal shelter.

Sincerely,

Martin DeVall
