

Submitter: Paul Morris

On Behalf Of:

Committee: House Committee On Judiciary

Measure: HB3390

The tying of fishing flies often includes natural animal furs, and tying fishing flies is a practice that dates back centuries--a long and rich tradition that spread from England to North America (and to South America, New Zealand, Japan...). Please don't cripple a beautiful craft and art that employs very little natural fur but relies on it so deeply.