

Dark skies are a vital part of our natural world and are extremely important to all life as we know it. Without a normal amount of natural darkness, unaffected by man made light, all beings natural rhythms are degraded.