Measure: HB3503

Lifting the ban on local rent control in Oregon is paramount. Living with housemates has been the only way for me to make ends meet, and the vast majority of my peers are in a similar situation. Giving local governments the power to implement their own rent control policies, tailored to local housing prices, is an obvious step in the right direction. Such policies would help my peers and I reduce the burden of our monthly rents and make life a bit more livable. The legislature should pass HB 3503.
