Rapidly rising inflation is largely due to government over-spending, and that chiefly by diluting our currency with printed, borrowed money. It's estimated that inflation is eroding the value of every Oregonian's dollar by 7%. The Kicker should be returned in full to every taxpaying Oregonian because of the dramatic and hurtful impact of inflation.

Moreover, solutions to drought impacted areas is best addressed by a bottom-up, locally-recommended guide, and not a top-down state study of so-called experts. There is plenty of resources in the Agriculture department to address this. In addition, this year has been a banner snow-pack, so it's likely that drought pressure is mitigating.

Please vote "NO!" to steal the Kicker for this. Return the taxes to Oregonians.
