

An image of signs that hung across the country during the early to mid-1900s. Braceros who came to work in the US were often met with violence, racism, and discrimination.

