I wholeheartedly support this bill to give school districts flexibility to help their more students walk and bike to school more often, utilizing existing transportation funds to not merely transport students around the problem via bus, but to help them get to school under their own power. Research shows that kids who walk or bike to school are more ready to learn, do better academically, and are overall physically healthier and more active than those who do not. Helping support walking or biking school 'busses' is a no-brainer that should enjoy widespread community support.
