It definitely needs to be passed. I get scared every time I stop and have cars stopping behind me, and have seen countless people get squished between 2 cars as drivers don't pay attention. This is honestly one of my biggest fears as a rider. I am constantly paranoid and checking my mirrors to make sure the car is slowing down behind me and I'm afraid one day it won't and I will get squished between 2 5000lb machines and someone who's not paying attention. All of the lives taken from lane filtering being illegal, should be plenty enough reason to make it legal and KNOWN to the public.
